RESTORING MONTGOMERY'S HISTORIC MARKERS

These markers tell the important histories that took place in the Capital City.

In 2019, the Department of Economic and Community Development restored four historic markers in need of repair and in high visibility sites.

Centennial Hill Neighborhood

This marker at High and Union Streets commemorates the significant history of the Centennial Hill Neighborhood, a founding African American neighborhood adjacent to Alabama State University.

Georgia Gilmore, The Club From Nowhere

This marker stands at 453 Dericote Street, where Ms. Georgia Gilmore lived. She was a midwife, a cook and ardent activist in the Civil Rights movement.

Figh-Pickett House

at 512 South Court is the oldest survivng brick dwelling in Montgomery built in 1837. In 1865 the Union Army command made this house their headquarters.

Dr. E.D. Nixon's Home

is located at 647 Clinton Ave. Nixon is nationally recognized as a pioneer of the modern day Civil Rights Movement. He was a Pullman Porter, activist and chief strategist of the Montgomery Bus Boycott.

More markers can be restored or created as funds become available.
